First I tried to find a link from this page to write an article about. As I was browsing through the pages and themes I realised I have found what I've been looking for. I have been a frequent user of the site for over five years now and throughout the time the pictures presented in the site are always, from my point of view, with no exception- very stylish and cool.

Maybe it has something to do with the general theme of the site, but they do have some skillful people choosing the pics for them. There are some pretty interesting stuff to be found about advertisement and design in the pages as well with very cool pictures in them. I'm not sure if you are familiar with the site but I think it is cool =)
